DECORATION TIPS

- Neck gaiters have one large print area front and back that is separated into two distinct areas-both need to be considered.
- The top 10 to 12 inches of the decoration area generally covers the mouth and nose. This is the most prominent area for logo placement.
- The bottom 7 to 9 inches covers the neck and is less prominent for logo placement but still must be considered in the overall design.
- Measurements account for clamping systems, hooping area and heat press platen sizes.
- A larger decoration area may be achieved with the appropriate equipment.

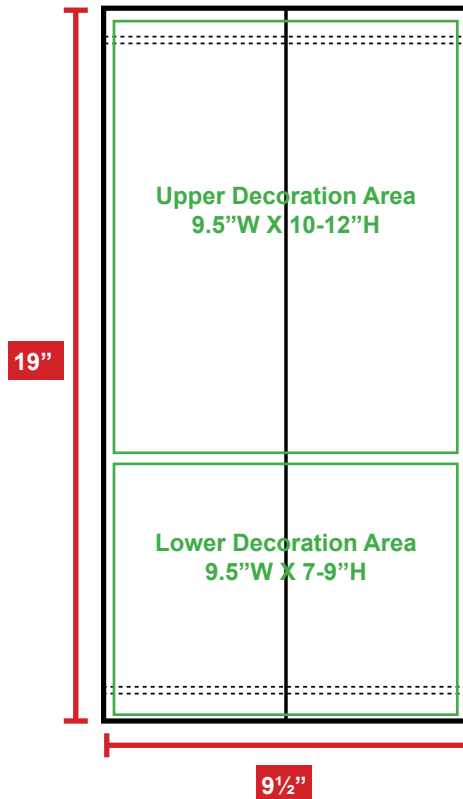

RECOMMENDED DECORATION TECHNIQUES

- Screen Printing: Use a flexible ink additive, low bleed inks or silicone inks
- Heat Transfer: Use a flexible heat transfer with a bleed blocker
- Pad Printing
- Dye Sublimation

Logos that block the upper front of the gaiter could hamper breathability.

Note: If using dye sublimation, this does not apply.

Remove the background color for breathability.

If the logo must stay intact, shrink the size and place it off to the side to ensure maximum breathability.
